The Silk Smugglers - Funerals -From Abroad - High-toned Swindiers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 .- Sergeant Edward Shaw, of the Scotland Yard Police, London, has arrived here, to testify in the case of Lawrence, who is awaiting trial in Ludlow-street Jail, on charges of forgery and defrauding the U.S. Government. The detectives declare that the combination, of which Lawrence was an agent, is very powerful, and has defrauded the Government out of very large sums. Its operatiens are believed to be checked for a time, but not wholly broken up, and It is asserted that the silk smuggling ring includes some houses of high standing in this city.

The iunerals of Philip Mang and Wm. Hughes, two of the victims of the fire ladder oatastrophe, were largely attended by numerous societies of which they were members. Chief Nash, the other victim, will be buried this alternoon.

A special from Leignitz says: Quartermaster Meigs, with his son and Lieutenant Newcomb, and Colonels Dickenson, Woodruff and Delancy Floyd Jones, of the United States army, yesterday witnessed the autumn maneuvers of the German army, which were upon a grand fy in the case of Lawrence, who is await-chair.

Judge Sturgis, on taking the chair, addressed the Convention briefly. He scouted the idea that the Democratic scutted the idea that the Democratic party was a greenback party, and said it was a Republican Congress which made greenbacks Legal Tenders, and a Republican supreme court which declared the Legal Tender Act constitutional. Today the Republicans' money is fourteen to fifteen per cent. below par. It was the duty of the Government to economize and curtail expenses make the constitutions. and curtail expenses, make the paper dol-lar as good as gold, and tuen resume, but inr as good as gold, and then resume, but you can't resume by legislation. Put a good man at the head of the Government who will turn out demagogues and corruptionists, and by reducing the expenditures make it possible to bring the greenbacks to par. That is the way to resume. Referring to the statement that the Democrats are in favor of paying off the National debt in greenbacks, and the Republicans in gold, he said we had but three hundred and flity millions in gold in the ceuntry with which to pay our enormous National debt.

The other committees not being ready to report, the Convention acjourned to 9 A. M. this morning.

The Horrors of Civil War.

General Costella, who had command of the Carlist fortifications at Villareal during the recent engagement, in a letter to a friend says:

I have during my like witnessed some very sad scenes of war, and I thought I had seen the summit of human misery in the retreat of the Army of the East (in 1870), of which I commanded the rear guard. But I can not recall any impression which can be compared with the feeling which I experienced on entering with Brigadier Valluerca the principal street of Villareal, when It was on fire from one end to the other.

The crackling of the flames whose red the effect that Dr. Maley and a young man by the name of John Russell became involved in a quarrel yesterday about a bet, on the train coming home from the base-ball match, and that the Coroner, drawing a pictol, presented it to Russel's forchead simply because he had called him (the Doctor) a liar.

This morning a Star reporter called on Coroner Maley and the following colloquy arose:

Rep.—Well, Doctor, how about that little quarrel of your's yesterday?

Coroner—Pshaw! It was nothing.

Rep.—Well, let's have your version of the affair.

Cor.—This young man, who was glare struggled against the light of the mid-day sun, the hearty crash of windows giving way and of roofs falling in, the shrieks of frenzied women and the cries of the children who ran with bare feet on the ashes, the grim despair of the old men, as they gazed with a dryey eye and a fixed stare upon the scene, the imprecations of the Carlist soldiers as parties of them rushed in hot pursuit of the incendiaries, the rattle of the musketry, all formed a horrible spectacle which baffles description.

I saw in a side street, between two burning houses, a woman lying stretched out on a mattress, surrounded by little children half naked, who were uttering pieroing cries. The atmosphere was unbearable. The flames all but lieked the paths; the burning ruins were falling down on all sides quite close to them; and this family abandoned in the confusion, were about to be either roasted or crushed. The heat becoming more and more intense; their faces were crimson; the children in their agony redoubled their shrieks; their poor mother, as she looked at them, weeping, and calling the holy Virgin to her aid. What could be more heartrending than this picture, framed as it were in fire?

Rudoupper Almegura was convicted of steal-

In America we have no Westminster Abbey, and consequently our great and good and remarkable men and women, our statesmen and poets, patriots and philanthropists, lie generally near the homes they admired while living, and where their friends may easily visit their resting places, when dead. This, we think, is better. The man whose life has been illustrious, has probably been better loved at home, in his own neighborhood, than in the busy mart of trade, the arena of politics, or at the booksellers. And therefore it is better that this body should lie near those who loved him best. For we can scarcely subscribe to Shakspear's saying, that "the good which men do dies with them." It lives and preaches from their graves, often with more influence than did their lives. Our Westmister abbeys are scattered all over our country. From Mount Vernon to Greenville, where our first and last Presidents respectively lie; from New Hampshire to North Bend the dust of our Presidents rests, and their graves become shrines and radiating influences, teaching patriotic lessons to the visitor and the youth in their vicinity. Our Abbeys for our great dead are the green graves and grassy hillsides, well-kept lawns and broders of flowering shrubs, made cheef'al—if such can be so made—by sunlight [and summer warmth, green grasses alld Waying branches. God's architecture that lofms the trunks and branches of the trees of Mount Auburn, aided by the hand of Art, are Boston's Westminister Abbey, and a thousand times more beautiful in approprateness than all the grand architecture of the great British Mausoleum.—Alta Cali. fornia.

A Chance for the Ruptured Our readers will be pleased to learn that Dr. J. A. Sherman, of New York that Dr. J. A. Sherman, of New York City, distinguished throughout this country and Europe for his wonderful system of successfully treating rupture, is now in Cincinnati, treating such cases as may be conflided to his care. Thousands throughout the country are living winesses of the efficiency of his remedies, for the relief of this most deplorable affliction. To be ruptured is a sad thing since no one in that situation knows the pending doom that awaits him. Whether doubtedly the cause of the child's death,

THAT PISTOL.

What the Amiable Corener Says about it.
The morning journals tell a story to the effect that Dr. Maley and a young man by the name of John Russell be.
Came involved in a quarrel yesterday
about a bet, on the train coming home from the base-ball match, and that the Coroner, drawing a pistol, presented it to Russel's forchead simply because he had called him (the Doctor) a liar.

This morning a STAR reporter called on Coroner Majey and the following colloquy arose:

Rep.—Well, Doctor, how about that
